

TAFT IN FAVOR OF PEACE IN EUROPE; CANNOT INTERFERE

UNITED STATES CANNOT OPPOSE NATIONAL DIGNITY, HE SAYS, BUT WANTS PEACE.

STATES HIS ATTITUDE

Parla Paper Publishes Interview With President Taft on Topic of World-wide Interest.

Parla, Nov. 29.—The Parla paper publishes this morning what purports to be an interview with President Taft written by Francisco De Tossan. The latter quotes the president on such subjects as intervening in the Turkish-Italian war, on America's attitude in regard to China, on the situation in Mexico and on the general subject of arbitration.

Will Not Interfere. When asked about the possibility of American mediation in the Turkish-Italian war the writer says President Taft declared the United States was disposed in favor of the reestablishment of peace.

"Our relations with the two belligerents are equally friendly," President Taft is quoted. "We do not wish to offend the national dignity of either. Moreover, the Turkish-Italian war concerns primarily the European concert."

"There is, therefore, the question of fact for the United States not to put herself forward to bring an end to a conflict which, however, from the bottom of her heart she desires to see ended."

Would Defend Interests. "We have wished to avoid anything that might lead to a misrepresentation of our action."

Speaking on the subject of China, President Taft is stated to have said that the United States would naturally defend its interests.

When asked if any disquietude exists in regard to Mexico, President Taft replied that "everything would be done to reestablish peace there."

Continuing, he said: "On the eve of the opening of the Panama canal, it is of importance to see that the people to the south of the canal enjoy the healthful tranquility necessary for the triumph of the great work about to be finished and to see the country in the vicinity of the isthmus in perfect security."

Accomplished Good Work. "The president remarked that he returned from the far west with the conviction that he had accomplished a good work."

"After all I have seen and heard I am convinced that the senate will ratify the text of the treaties submitted to it."

VOTES OF WOMEN DECIDE OUTCOME OF THE CITY ELECTION

Tremendous Interest Manifested in Now Drawing to Close.

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 29.—The most strenuous and most interesting municipal campaign ever known in the history of Los Angeles is rapidly drawing to a close. Only a few days more of hard campaign work and the deciding battle will be fought at the polls, on December 5. What the result will be, nobody can tell; but whatever the decision may be, it will be made by the vote of women.

For years the women have been working assiduously to gain political recognition and the right to vote in this state. At last, at the State election a little more than a month ago, their ardent wish was fulfilled and the franchise was granted to them by an amendment to the State constitution.

That the women have now actually entered the political arena in this state and are a power to be reckoned with in the future is no longer a debatable question. This campaign in this city, now drawing to its close, is an argument which cannot fail to convince even those scoffers who have hitherto derided the importance of the "votes for women" movement a few months ago. This campaign which will go down in history as the first positive manifestation of woman's political power in California, was a battle royal fought by women.

It was granted to the women of Los Angeles to undergo the first test of their political fitness in a campaign for mayor and, on December 5, the day of election, they will be the first among the women of California not only to use their newly granted franchise but to decide the result of the election. There is not the slightest doubt that the women of Los Angeles hold the balance of power and that the outcome of the election depends entirely upon the vote of the women, of whom more than 85,000 have been registered.

At the recent primaries an exceedingly small vote was cast. Job Harriman, the Socialist candidate for mayor, who is associated with the defense of the McNamara, defeated George Alexander, the present mayor who is running for the second government ticket, by more than 3,000 votes, but his plurality fell short of a majority by more than 4,000 votes and for this reason it was left for the coming election to make the final decision.

In the meantime, however, the right to vote was granted to women and the women of Los Angeles, fully aware of their power, were not slow in availing themselves of their rights by registering for the coming municipal election. After the fizzle of the primaries the male voters of the city too realized that they would have to bestir themselves and the result was that since the primaries more than 121,000 voters have been registered.

Job Harriman, who has a strong following among the laboring classes, received financial support from Socialists in all parts of the country and carried on an energetic campaign. Mayor Alexander, realizing how critical the situation was and that the decision rested with the women, appealed to the latter, especially those of the wealthy classes and they responded bravely. Traveling in automobiles scores of society women made a thorough canvass among the laboring women, urging them to use their votes and influence against the Socialist candidate. The Harriman party also had women electioneering among the women of the poorer classes and only the election will show which side was more successful in its efforts.

UNITED DOCTORS TO LOCATE HERE

DIRECTORS WHO HAVE BEEN TOURING OVER STATE HAVE DECIDED ON THIS CITY.

SAVE TRAVEL TO MANY

New Institute To Be Opened in A Few Days.

Doctors Elston, Godwin and Stone, the three directors of the United Doctors, who have been in the city several days looking the field over for a site for their new Wisconsin Institute, have at last decided that Janesville is the most promising city in Wisconsin, and accordingly the new United Doctors Institute will be located here.

Janesville is certainly about as well equipped with doctors, hospitals and medical institutions of various kinds as any city of its size in the west. True, the large eastern cities enjoy some advantages not offered here, yet our medical talent is not far behind them and enjoy an enviable reputation throughout the west.

But Janesville is always looking to advancement, always holds out a welcome to any person or institution who will locate here and further the interest of her people; and it is a most royal welcome which awaits the United Doctors who announce they are preparing to open a medical institution in Janesville within a few days.

The United Doctors, as the name implies, is an association of expert medical specialists who have united to organize a new school of medicine, a new and more positive way of curing human ailments. For centuries the world has been full of different cults and sects in medicine; we have had the old root and herb doctor with his bitter potions, the allopath with his pills and quinine his heroic doses, the homoeopath with his infinitesimal doses, the eclectic, the osteopath, the Christian Scientist; we were tormented by heat, by electricity, by baths at Hot Springs and by a multitude of men and methods. Some of the patients were cured, some died who should have been cured. It was impossible for the ordinary person to say which method of treating disease was the best and the physicians of the various schools were so biased that they could see good only in their own methods of treating disease, all others were necessarily bad. Evidently there is good in all of them, for they all cured some cases; also there is bad in all, for all fall at times and allow misery to remain and death to come when a cure should have been effected.

A tremendous stride forward was made when the association of United Doctors was formed. The founders of the association consisted of eminent medical specialists from the various schools of practice. Deceivers, homoeopaths, allopaths, regulars and irregulars met and agreed to drop their prejudices and form a new system of treatment that would embrace all the good points of the old methods and leave out the bad. The result of the efforts of these world famous specialists of the various schools was the wonderful system of treatment now used by the United Doctors. All this was not accomplished in a day or a week, but has taken years of patient work by these specialists in their great institutions in the east and west; homoeopaths, allopaths, working side by side, each throwing away his old ideas when he was convinced there was something better, until at last out of the old chaos and confusion came the new and perfect system as it is now used by the United Doctors.

The cost to these specialists was great, not only by the labor of formulating the new system of treatment but also in the effort it cost them to ignore their pride in the various schools in which they were originally educated. But their reward has been great, for they have seen health and happiness restored to hundreds and thousands pronounced incurable by old methods.

As stated above, the United Doctors will open an institute in Janesville in a few days, which will be the first of the kind in this section of the state. The only other Wisconsin institution of these specialists in this state is at Racine and Eau Claire and each enjoy a tremendous practice. Details as to location and date of the opening of the Janesville Institute will be given in these columns soon.

WINTER WEATHER BRINGS SEWER WORK TO A STOP

Contractor Lays Off Force And Will Not Resume Operations Until Next Spring.

Severe cold and snow has brought sewer construction for this year to a stop. The contractors have laid off their men and work will not be resumed until next spring. Over a mile of sewer is yet to be put in. All pipes to be laid this fall in district number sixteen have been put in place and only one man-hole is left to be constructed before operations are closed.

PLANS FOR CHANGES AT MYERS THEATRE

Introduction of Vaudeville There on Thanksgiving May Lead to Its Becoming Regular Feature.

Manager Peter L. Myers of the Myers Theatre will have a special Thanksgiving vaudeville matinee and evening performance tomorrow at his theatre, the acts being furnished by the vaudeville agency of Milwaukee. In speaking of the matter Mr. Myers said today: "I plan to make these vaudeville engagements a regular feature after the Christmas holidays. In fact, I have made arrangements for bookings on the 14th, 15th and 16th of December and the 25th, Christmas Day afternoon and evening and the 26th and 27th. The patronage of the good shows that have appeared here this fall has been most encouraging and consequently I am turning to vaudeville."

"For Thanksgiving I have arranged an excellent program from the vaudeville agency in Milwaukee and from all reports this performance will be well worth the money for a pleasant afternoon or evening enjoyment."

"The following well known acts will appear: Metropolitan Quartette, Thos. Harmon Boys, The Two Lindemanns, European Equilibrist in mid-air feats of wonder. Williams & Under, the well known Railroad Conversationalists, Chas. Fields in Levis's Wedding and Wilson, Jones and Wilson in Fun in Dixie-Land."

"The above named acts have all played over the best vaudeville time and the vaudeville agency personally guarantees each and every act to give the best of satisfaction. The prices for matinee and evening are 50c 35c and 25c. Seats for both performances are now on sale at the box office."

DISTRICT STEWARD MEETING HELD AT METHODIST CHURCH.

Delegates From Twenty Churches Were Present at Annual Meeting.

Twenty delegates from Methodist churches in the Janesville district were present at the annual steward meeting which was held at the Carle St. M. E. Church yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. John R. Reynolds entertained the delegates at dinner in the church parlors at noon and in the afternoon the business of the gathering was transacted. The apportionments for the various churches in the district was made.

Men Who Do Women's Work.

Among some of the American Indian tribes of the southwestern United States, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, there is a curious custom of men occasionally assuming the work of women as a life occupation. This, when it occurs, is voluntarily undertaken, and seems to be due to a preference for feminine labors, the man sinking his identity as far as possible by assuming woman's garb. Pueblo Indians of Zuni, New Mexico, do their share of the regulation woman's work in the household of which they happen to be members—grinding corn, making bread, carrying water, etc.—and seem thoroughly respected. One would be quite deceived by their costumes into supposing them to be women, did not their deceptively voices betray their masculinity.

Wanted to Patent a Circus.

P. T. Barnum once came to the office to know if he could patent the three-ring circus. In technical parlance his three-ring circus was an aggregation and not a combination to produce a new result. Therefore it was not patentable, which information highly incensed the showman. "It will be adopted by every circus just as soon as I make it known," he declared. And it was.—From the Scientific American's "Ten Stories."

ENDORSE TONA VITA AS REMARKABLE TONIC

Cleveland People Come Out For This New Remedy.

William G. Doe, who resides at 2109 West 83d street, is among well-known Clevelanders who have recently come out as endorsers of the remarkable new tonic, "Tona Vita," now being introduced for the first time here.

Mr. Doe said: "For the past eight months I have suffered with stomach trouble. My digestion was imperfect; gas would form on my stomach when I ate, and I was almost continually constipated."

"I was in a low state of nervousness and I never got a night's sleep. My mind became sluggish and my memory poor. I lost weight rapidly. I consulted physicians and was given several prescriptions, but with no success. I finally decided to try this new tonic, 'Tona Vita.' The result was almost instantaneous. I began to improve rapidly, and I now feel vigorous and healthy."

"I believe 'Tona Vita' is the best remedy ever sold here. I recommend it to my friends."

One of the physicians who are explaining the nature of the new preparation to the public, in speaking of Mr. Doe's statement, said: "Few of the public fully realize as yet what a wonderful medicine 'Tona Vita' is. In Europe a similar preparation has been endorsed by some of the greatest persons, including the surgeon-general of the French army, but the medicine is new to the United States. However, before we leave this city the hundreds of half-sick men and women who are victims of nervous debility, and the general ill-health that this disease produces, will realize what a blessing the tonic is."

"Chief among the symptoms of nervous debility are lack of energy, stomach and bowel troubles, nervousness, depression of spirits, sleeplessness, little vitality, headaches, dull pain in the back, poor circulation, cold feet, dizzy spells, spots before the eyes and uneasy sleep. To any individual suffering from these symptoms 'Tona Vita' is a positive relief."

"Smith Drug Co. have secured the agency for 'Tona Vita' in Janesville, and the celebrated tonic is now on sale at their store."

Primitive Race.

In the more inaccessible parts of the Sierra Madre mountains in northern Mexico live a curious people called the Tarahumara. Many of them dwell in caves, but they have also small villages; all of them about 8,000 feet above sea level. The Tarahumara are small in body, but possessed of much endurance. Their only food is maize, and they manufacture a drink called tesahu from the same cereal. Their language is limited to about 300 words, and they cannot count beyond ten.

Safe Well Guarded.

A remarkable new "safe" lock has been invented. It is provided with phonographic mechanism, so that it can be opened only by the voice of the owner. A mouthpiece like that of a telephone takes the place of a knob on the door, and this is provided with the usual style or needle, which travels in a groove in the sound record of the phonograph cylinder. Before the safe can be unlocked the password must be spoken into the original cylinder by the one who made the original record.

Stop That Cough in a Minute

Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by perspiration from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs heal and without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. Froelich, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets.

SOUTHERN FOOTBALL CONTEST TOMORROW

Virginia And North Carolina Teams Will Play Their Eighteenth Game in City of Richmond.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 29.—For the eighteenth time the athletic rivalry existing between the University of Virginia and the University of North Carolina will be given in the annual contest between the teams of the two universities here tomorrow. The two universities are regarded as mutually well matched and a spirited game is anticipated. North Carolina in particular enters the contest with hopes of victory, in view of the fact that this year's team is one of the best Chapel Hill institutions has turned out in years. Of the seventeen games played by the two universities since 1902 Virginia has won 12 and North Carolina 5. In 1902 the game was played.

Modern Marriage.

Frederick Townsend Martin, the satirist of the "Idle rich," made a witty speech at a literary dinner in New York, about modern marriage. "Love," he said, "certainly has a very small place in a marriage in a modern. I was talking the other day at a tea to a beautiful debutante, when a beautiful bride, a girl of 18 or so, passed with her husband. The husband was an old fellow of 70, and the debutante, nodding toward him, said: 'I suppose I should have married Millions for his money.' 'If she did,' said I severely, 'it was a very wrong and foolish thing to do.' 'Yes, wasn't it?' said the debutante. 'Oh Millions looks so healthy. I'm sure he'll live to a hundred.'"

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

The Little Helper.

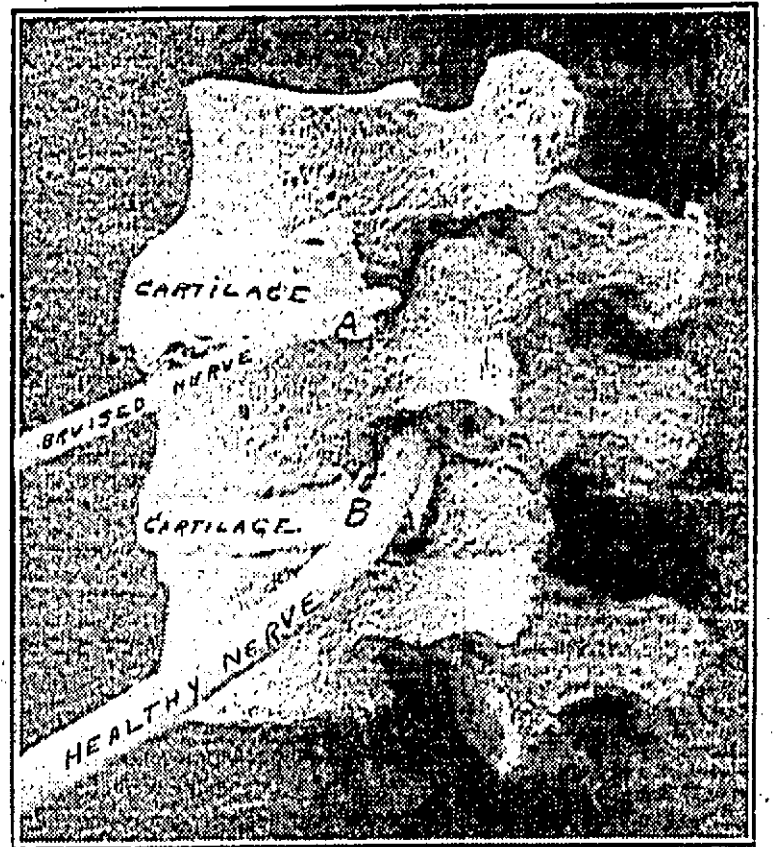

I WISH I could work just like you do," said Hastings as he sat on his father's knee in front of the big fireplace. Mr. Andrews laughed and pinched Hastings' two rosy cheeks. "And would you want to come home as tired as papa is tonight, little boy?" he continued, shifting the little chap over to the other knee. "Are you very tired?" asked Hastings, nestling his cheek against his father's coat. Mr. Andrews tossed his evening paper to the floor. "Pretty tired tonight, son," he answered, "but not half as tired as I would be if there was no little Hastings to make things merry for me when I came home."

Then for a time the two sat silently watching the warm flames dancing blue and yellow about the great hearth log. Mr. Andrews spoke suddenly. "I have it," he said. "For such a little boy, Hastings, you are a very good helper. You have helped me in many ways. You have helped me to read, and you have helped me to write, and you have helped me to do many other things. You are a very good helper, Hastings. You are a very good helper."

"What?—What is it?" asked Hastings, hopping up and down in his excitement. "Oh, tell me quick." "You're sure you will like it?" questioned his father, laughing. "Yes, yes," answered the little chap. "Oh, do tell me." "Well," said Mr. Andrews, "next Monday I will take you into the office with me, and you can help me a whole lot. I am sure." Hastings shouted with delight, and the days went slow indeed before Monday arrived. Of course, he enjoyed the ride in the steam cars to the great city, but the greatest happiness of all was at the office. He liked all the office people very much, and one of the bookkeepers bought him some candy at the noon hour. And Hastings liked his work, too, for when he would carry a paper all covered with writing from his father over to the bookkeeper, the bookkeeper would say, "Thank you." He felt really grown up. Hastings says Monday is the best day of all, for every first working day of the week you will find him close by his father's desk, working just as hard as can be.

DISEASE

IS A LACK OF NORMAL FUNCTION

Function is the life of the body, it originates in the brain which is the power-house. Branching from the spinal cord, an elongation of the brain, are the 31 pr. of nerves, these nerves supply every organ in the body with life, provided the nerve is free from pressure. In the cut the first two vertebrae (spinal bones) are shown together in such a way as to pinch or press on the soft nerve (A) that passes through the opening between the vertebrae. Here lies THE CAUSE OF DISEASE. The nerve is reduced in size, it is not capable of carrying the normal amount of current to respective tissues and organs. Disease is the result, no matter how slight the disease may be the subluxation is the cause.

Step on a hose—the amount of water passing through it will be reduced—remove the pressure it again carries the required amount of water.

Remove nerve pressure, allow the current to get to the tissue cells, nature is allowed to repair the diseased tissues. (Notice B).

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving day. No news in that but just a gentle reminder that the annual anniversary, while a little tardy, is still with us in all its glory. It is the one holiday of the year when everybody is supposed to be thankful, on general principles, for the blessings which come to humanity in this free land where every man is a sovereign.

The year has been peculiar in some ways, and its record will pass to history as an epoch to which the oldest inhabitant will refer half a century hence, as one of the remarkable years of a life time.

Nature has contributed in a measure to unusual conditions. The year was ushered in by the great tidal wave which swept over the South-west coast of Florida and ushered out by the storm which swept across the country, two weeks ago, leaving a path of destruction which will long serve as a reminder of the year nineteen hundred and eleven.

But those storms, and others which have intervened were only comparatively destructive of life and property and people who believe in providence will find comfort in the thought that the power which permits directs the course.

The tidal wave swept its fury in the Everglades and along the south-western coast of Florida, where but few people live and where most of the country is as wild as when the Seminole first discovered it.

Company, the steel combine the to-hance trust, during the early part of the year, but these infant industries have managed to pull through, and nobody has been seriously hurt.

Just now the problem of what we have to be thankful for in the political outlook, is consuming us, but the sage of Oyster Bay is in the back ground ready to take the helm before the ship of state strikes the breakers.

All in all the year calls for gratitude from every angle, and whether we buy our own turkey or share in hospitality, at the other fellow's expense, we can afford to be happy. As well as grateful that we are here, a living factor in the forces which make for destiny.

The spark of human sympathy, kindled by the storm and fanned to a blaze by generous impulses brought to the surface the rare grace of brotherly love which makes the world akin. So thanksgiving comes as a climax this year, and the old scripture is fulfilled. "It is more blessed to give than receive."

AND STILL THEY COME.

During recent weeks Commission government has had two distinct and widely separated storm centers—Massachusetts and California.

Lawrence and Lowell, Mass., two of the largest and busiest manufacturing centers in New England, have adopted this plan of popular control, and it speaks much for the essential democracy of the idea that it was accepted so enthusiastically by communities which are mainly industrial in their make-up.

Lexington, Kentucky, after a hard struggle and one unsuccessful attempt has joined the growing company.

Sacramento and Stockton, both of them important cities, are the most recent additions to the California list. Other cities in that state which are considering commission government are San Jose, Fresno, Eureka, Marysville and Chico.

Cambridge, Mass., rejected Commission government by a small margin; likewise Salem, Ore., and Irvington, N. J.

Measured in terms of population of the cities adopting the plan Commission government shows a ten per cent. increase as a result of the elections on November 7.

It is only a matter of time when Janesville will line up with the procession.

This year Idaho entered the large list of states which permit any and all of the cities to adopt the Short Ballot Commission Plan of Government by the simple operation of a referendum vote. The Commission is to be elected for four-year terms, which however expire in rotation, three at one time and two at another, making popular control a very easy matter. In this Idaho follows the latest trend of the Commission Government movement by making the Short Ballot even shorter, for in most Commission Government cities all five members are elected simultaneously.

One unique feature of the Initiative provision of the law is the wording of the affidavit to be attached to the petitions whereby the voter declares that he has "read or heard read at length, section by section, the proposed ordinance."

CLEAN THE WALKS.

"The Street Commissioner is to be commended for his efforts to enforce the law on cleaning the sidewalks from snow, yet in spite of all that he can do many of the unoccupied lots will be neglected. There is only one intelligent way to handle the snow proposition and that is for the city to employ half a dozen teams with snow plows. After every storm and clean up the entire city at public expense.

This might cost $150 for the winter, but it would be money well invested and everybody would be satisfied.

Other cities and many of the towns, adopt this policy and there is no reason why Janesville should not do the same. The early snows are what play the mischief for they form a coating of ice which stays on all winter and walking soon becomes difficult and dangerous.

A small force of men with teams would have most of the walks cleaned by noon and all this trouble would be avoided.

The city needs the commission plan of government to remedy a good many evils.

The State of Iowa has adopted a trade mark for its manufactured goods which will be generally adopted. It will not be used to any great extent, however, because the state by fool legislation, killed its manufacturing industries years ago and has never recovered. Corn and hogs are the principle products. The state is not holding its own in population because it has no growing manufacturing centers.

The Congressional Committee which investigated Senator Stephenson will bring in a verdict against the reform primary law, the only guilty party to the transaction. If this would relieve the state of the worst octopus known to public life, the time and money involved would be well spent.

The good fellowship movement so successful last year, has again been inaugurated by the Chicago Tribune, and is already meeting with hearty response. The good work is spreading to all parts of the country and many a home will be made glad at Christmas time, which might be overlooked, but for the big brotherhood.

HEARD OF, BUT SELDOM SEEN. One hundred dollars bills. Honest politicians. Unhappy rich men. Non-puncturable tires. Actors with retiring dispositions. Comfortable Pullman borths. Boarding house chicken. Raises in salary. Old fashioned honesty. Yarn tea. Wonderful patent medicine cures. Something for nothing.

OUR OPTIMIST CONTENT. My idea of an optimist is a man who, when falling off a fourteen story building, can say, when passing the fifth floor: "Well, I'm all right yet."

An optimist is a man who will cough $2 for a ticket to an amateur violinists' concert.—W. L. T.

The champion optimist is a man who secures a divorce from one suitor to marry another.—Constant Reader.

An optimist is a person who expects to get a 10-cent article in a 10-cent store.—Veritas.

There are many optimists, but none who equals the man who starts to raising chickens on a side line.—A. G.

An optimist is a man who can get a laugh out of a musical comedy.—Theater Geor.

An optimist is a man who dyes his mustache and can make himself believe he is looking anybody.—T. A. L.

An optimist is a man who stops in front of a military window with his wife.—A. R. J.

An optimist is a man who cheerfully puts on his rubbers when the ship is sinking.—Reader.

HOW TO GET IN WRONG. Imagine the complexion of your neighbor's wife. Ask for a haircut in a barber shop on Saturday night. Criticize the maid's blouses. Begin by telling a little woman she is "cute."

Sleeping Policeman Quoted. A nap in a picture show tent cost Patrolman Ephram Moore his job. He was dismissed by the police commissioners. Moore said he had entertained visitors from the country and that when he went on duty he had had only two hours of sleep. "I had to report at the Dear Street station on the hour," he said, "and when I reached the tent, which is across the street from the station, I found I had a few minutes to spare before call time. I went in and sat down on a bench. When the sergeant found me I was asleep."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Want the Practical. Preaching optimism is, of course, well enough, but those who are out of work would be better satisfied with something a little more practical.—Buffalo Commercial.

"No, thank you," we interrupted, with the faint dignity we so well know how to assume when bill collectors and other undesirable citizens approach.

"Ah, you don't wish to buy an automobile?" Then, perhaps I can interest you in a steel range. I have a very fine range that I sell for $157 at the rate of $1 down and 10 cents a week. It is the best—

"Nothing doing," we asserted with our well-known air of finality.

"Ah, then you don't care for a steel range? Well, I also represent a washing machine concern. I can let you have one of our new washing machines for $37—that—

"The lid's on," we muttered savagely. We have three washing machines now.

"Ah, then you don't need a washing machine? Well, perhaps a lawn mower exclusively."

"Ah, then you don't want to buy one? Well, I have a safety razor here that I will sell you for $3 that is just as good as—

"Six on the scraper," we replied.

"Ah, then not needing a razor, perhaps I can interest you in a fountain pen. Now for the small sum of $1.15—

"We can't write excepting on the typewriter."

"Ah, then you couldn't possibly need a fountain pen, but I have in my hand a glass cutter that sells for 25 cents, a quarter of a dollar, that—

"Give us the glass cutter. Good morning," we said with an immense sigh of relief.

"Thanks. That's what I came in to sell you in the first place," and he was gone from our midst like a beautiful dream.

Stung again, and on another glass cutter.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

AIN'T IT FUNNY?

Ain't it funny that the rummy with the least brains in his head.

As a parlor entertainer has a bankrupt reputation?

Ain't it funny how the folks will tit for at the things he's said.

Though they're no deval jokes that are known to all the nation?

Ain't it funny how he managed to get a hearty laugh.

On a gag that is as solemn as a tombstone epitaph.

Or a bunch of quite the milkiest of old Joe Miller's chaff?

Ain't it funny?

Ain't it funny how the kid who ranks the dullest in his class.

Is a mighty poor in algebra and other mathematics.

Sometimes figures out a system whereby he can soon amass a million while his brighter friends are living up in attic.

Ain't it funny how the homely man with not a bit of grace.

Will manage to win out the girl who has the sweetest face.

Although there are some handsome ones who could have in his place?

Ain't it funny?

Ain't it funny how the rawboned boss most always wins the dough?

How the poor man is most apt to promptly pay his obligations?

Ain't it funny how the shabby mule the longest road will go?

Why the engine whistle loudest for the drikest of stations?

Ain't it funny how the foot will always give the most advice.

How a fellow wears his ear muffs has most always got the price?

How appearances don't seem to cut a single bit of ice?

Ain't it funny?

A MAN OF MANY PARTS.

He was a man of very impressive appearance, and as he pulled up a chair and placed his feet upon the solid mahogany desk in our sanctum sanctorum, we decided that he was either a press agent or an actor, but we were mistaken.

"Contrary to our expectations," said he by way of opening a conversation, "I am not here to sell you any stock in a gold mine."

That was a refreshing piece of news and we shook him offensively by the hand.

"I am here, however," he continued, "to sell you a sixty horse power electric limousine. I like you immensely, and I am going to let you have this car for $8,576. It has got a double back action crank shaft, a reversible—

Unanimity.

CAMPAIGN MANAGER FOR STAMP SALE IS NOW BEING SOUGHT

Serious Problem of Securing Competent Person or Organization To Carry on Work Con-

Dr. Maude Williams, representing the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association in this city, is confronted with the serious problem of securing some person or organization who would be willing to manage the sale of Christmas stamps in this city and the surrounding country. Miss Louise Merrill who has successfully conducted the campaign last year is unable to take care of the work this season and as yet no one has been secured. Dr. Williams has been making inquiries but none of the persons who have been recommended have been in a position to serve. In speaking of the matter today she stated that she would now endeavor to have some of the fraternal organizations take up the work, and appeal one of their members, or a committee to superintend the sale.

Prizes Are Offered.

The state organization has prepared a long list of prizes which will be awarded for extensive sales of stamps by persons, or in a given community, and which have been donated to the cause by various merchants of the state. Among the prizes are the following:

$100, plus to the city or village in the state of over 2,500 population, for use in schools or halls.

Five $50 drinking fountains are to be awarded, one to each of five cities in five divisions for the largest per capita sale.

Sterling silver loving cup to the campaign manager who makes the largest per capita sale in an incorporated city.

Three hundred two-pound boxes of candy to the boy or girl making the largest individual sale in each city or village in Wisconsin over 500 population. Each winner will receive an order on one of the three donors for a two-pound box of their best candy.

An eighty dollar heater and ventilator to the elementary school making the best per capita sale.

Thirty-three complete dustless cleaners or equipments to the public schools having the largest per capita sales based on enrollment in cities and villages.

Numerous other valuable prizes are to be awarded and several others have not as yet been announced.

Local Prizes.

In several cities of the state local merchants have offered money and merchandise prizes to the school children to encourage the sale of the stamps. Dr. Williams recommends this method of aiding in the campaign and steps may be taken later to arrange such a plan in Janesville.

Conditions in County.

The report of the state Anti-Tuberculosis Society on the conditions of the disease in Rock county shows the following facts:

There are two hundred and sixty-five persons in the county who are ill with consumption. During the year 1910 there were fifty-three deaths in the county from tuberculosis. The wage loss in deaths from the disease last year amounted to $121,000. The death of each consumptive means a loss of $8,000.

As Mr. Carpenter had not been given any warning before prosecution was started against him, Judge Feltner imposed the minimum fine. MATERIAL FOR NEW BRIDGE HAS ARRIVED

Four Carloads Shipped Here.—Construction to Begin at Once.—Old Bridge To Serve as Framework.

Four carloads of material to be used in the construction of the Fourth Avenue bridge have arrived and will probably be unloaded today. Actual construction work will be started at once by the employees of the Central States bridge company having completed the steel work on the Racine street bridge. Through some error the cars of material were switched to the river siding there but have since been moved to the site of the new Fourth Avenue bridge. The old structure will serve as framework in its construction. The south piers will be placed off the bridge and the north tubes through opening made in the floor. The pile driver was moved down some time ago.

CHANGED THE NAME OF ORGANIZATION

Commercial Club Will Be Known in the Future as Good Fellowship Club—Discussed City Affairs.

The first of the fall and winter monthly dinners of the Commercial Club took place at the Myers Hotel last evening, at 6 o'clock and some 25 members enjoyed a few social hours together. On account of the illness of President James Pihl the meeting was called to order by Vice President George S. Sutherland who kept the discussions interesting. The name of the organization was changed to Good Fellowship Club so that it might not be confused with the Industrial and Commercial Club and its object as heretofore will be for social purposes as well as for the discussion of subjects of interest to the community as a whole.

Mr. Sutherland called on every man present for a few words on the commission form of government and its application to Janesville, the various phases of the amended law as passed by the last legislature, the benefit of the recall, etc. Many interesting features were brought out and the general trend of thought was favorable to the plan's adoption in this city.

Some discussion also arose as to the harmful effect of our retail trade in permitting the addition of a make a practice of canvassing the city at regular intervals with merchandise. The public also suffers as inferior goods at exorbitant prices are disposed of on the catch basis of installments. The peddler pays no local license, neither does he assist in the defraying of city government expenses, pays no taxes, etc. The public can secure goods of better value at less price in the home stores. Some action should be taken in this connection.

THE REV. DR. BEATON SPEAKER AT BANQUET

Responds to Toast on the "Auld Hame," At Banquet of St. Andrew's Society in Milwaukee.

The Rev. David Beaton, pastor of the local Congregational church gave the principal address at the fifty-second annual banquet of the St. Andrew's Society at the Hotel Elster in Milwaukee last night.

The subject was "The Auld Hame." Other speakers at the banquet were William J. McElroy, president of the society; Dr. Arthur T. Holbrook; the Rev. E. T. Hagans; the Rev. W. T. Dewart; and James A. Bryden.

An address that is a Scotch, but I am proud that I am an American citizen," said Dr. Beaton. "We have come from an ancient country, with a distinct contribution to the citizenship of this country. We should bring to that citizenship the things of which we boast in the Scottish character."

"The question that I am interested in is: What have we brought of our ancient heritage to this land? It is the glory of American citizenship that it is an amalgam of the best of the past. It is not that some particular nation is striving for the ascendancy. We hear it often said that the Anglo-Saxon predominates here. It is not so, I think God there is no nation in the world here. "If I stand here to exalt the Scot, it is not for exaltation but for any other nation but because Scotland has done much in building up the genius of this great republic. We exult today in the mingled citizenship of all the nations and I think God that Scots have contributed something to that citizenship."

Madison, Nov. 29.—John M. A proof he pointed to the present condition of finances of the city. He said the governing body ought to be more centralized and smaller.

Blondes Getting Scarcer.

Scientists are taking a gloomy view of the future of the blonde. Not only are fair people becoming fewer, but, if this is not a paradox, they are also becoming darker. The future promises to bring nothing more interesting than the "whitely browns" of humanity. To preserve our blondes is scientifically possible, but their continuance would make an end to the progress of civilization. All or nearly all the conditions of modern life tend to encourage brunettes. Before many decades have passed there will probably only be rare examples of women who are divinely fair, and their position may not be as enviable as the charitable are inclined to expect.

Poverty in New York.

Only two families in every one hundred of the 1,573 which have been in the care of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor this summer, were brought to poverty through intemperance. The report for 1909 showed that intemperance, imprisonment, desertion, "shiftlessness and inefficiency," all told, accounted for not 12 per cent. of those brought to want. Sixty-five per cent. was due to sickness and unemployment. This summer the two causes account for 68 per cent. of the poverty, and 42 per cent. or nearly half, was due to sickness.—New York World.

Thanksgiving Out of Doors.

THE outdoors Thanksgiving which we may all enjoy is not one of some special day, but one of many days and weeks. We do not need to wait for a proclamation setting forth the time when we shall celebrate it, but we may go forth any day and enjoy it. For this is truly a season outdoors to give thanks for. A haze is on the far horizon, an infinitely tender sky is above, a dreaminess is in the air, and but to walk forth is to give thanks. As Oliver Wendell Holmes truly says, "This is the time to walk in the woods or on the seashore,—a sweet season that should be given to lonely walks, to stumbling about in old churchyards, plucking on the way the aromatic, silvery herb, 'Everlasting,' and smiling on the dry flower until it otherwise the sense into aimless reveries outside of space and time. There is little need to paint the still, warm, misty dreamy Indian summer in words; there are many states that have no articulate vocabulary, and are only to be reproduced in music—and the mood this season produces is of this nature. By and by, some native laymen will perhaps turn the Indian summer into the loveliest andante of the new Creation."

So, no matter upon what date Thanksgiving Day itself may fall, we may all have our little outdoor Thanksgiving, when we wander forth and enjoy the feast of softness and dreaminess and faint vanishing colors nature has spread for us. And it is a question worth considering if a Thanksgiving of this kind is not worth more than one of a heavy dinner and small chit-chat afterward. To cherish our senses with that thought "Everlasting," until time and space are no more, is an experience worth having. We lose consciousness of this world, and we roam in the realms of the infinite and dwell upon the things of the spirit. We are swept up into heaven as it were, and the things we see and know are truly cause for joyous thanksgiving. We can come back to earth after awhile, but the joys we have tasted are an elixir in the blood, far more inspiring and lasting than the rarest wine that may be poured for us at a Thanksgiving feast.

No matter in what way we may enjoy the day appointed after the mundane fashion, let us get out and give our spirit an outdoor thanksgiving, where it may roam as it will, lured by the blue haze of some distant mountain, or roused to exuberant life by the flaming scarlet of some glorious tree. Let the wind as it races by tell of far lands and jubilant endeavor, and the high-arching dome of heaven with its scurrying clouds lead the mind to infinite space. And thus will an outdoor Thanksgiving set singing within us a psalm of joy. For as some poet says,

"There is something to the autumn that is native to our blood—
Touch of manner, hint of mood,
And our heart is like a rhyme
With the yellow and the purple and the crimson keeping time."

"The scarlet of the maples can shake us like a cry
Of bugles going by,
And the lonely spirit thrills
To see the frostyaters like smoke upon the hills."

And as it is meet to give thanks for the bountiful harvests nature has given in field and forest, so also it is meet to give thanks for the feast of beauty she has spread so lavishly for the eye and the spirit to partake of. And we will enjoy the formal Thanksgiving celebration all the more for a little private outdoor Thanksgiving of our own, wherein our spirit feasts at will upon the delicate ethereal loveliness of late November days.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

TODAY is the sixty-first anniversary of one of the most dearly loved men in the whole world of letters.

He left mankind at his death many beautiful stories and essays, but perhaps the best of all his legacies was the doctrine of the duty and beauty of happiness, which he continually taught in his writings. Mankind receives the doctrine at his hands the more willingly because he himself lived it. And lived it, moreover, despite tremendous obstacles of ill health and suffering. From the very day of his birth, Robert Louis Stevenson was afflicted with ill health. At the age of 22, just as he was about to take his examinations for the bar, he was imperiously sent south for the winter, and from then until the day of his death at the age of forty-four, he was continually struggling to keep his health. The last six years of his life he was absolutely bedridden from his native land, and suffered so from home-sickness that "there were times," says his biographer, "when he was even tempted to go back to the old life and the old friends were it only a few weeks or even a few days. But he realized temptation and fought manfully to the end."

The year before he died, he himself wrote, in a letter to a friend: "Fourteen years I have not had a day's real health. I have awakened sick, gone to bed weary, and have done my work unthinkingly. I have written in bed and out of it, written in hemorrhages, written in sickness, written torn by coughing, written when my head ached for weakness, and for so long it seems to me I have won my vigor and recovered my glow, and still few are the days when I am not in some physical distress."

And this is the manner of life that this man endured who not only promulgated, but lived, the doctrine of the duty of happiness. On this, the anniversary of his birth, I want to bring afresh to my readers a few of his expressions of that doctrine.

"There is no duty so much underrated as the duty of being happy. By being happy, we sow anonymous benefits upon the world, which remain unknown even to ourselves. A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note."

"There is an idea abroad among moral people, that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good; myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying I have to make him happy if I may."

"To be honest, to be kind, to earn a little and to spend a little less; TO MAKE UPON THE WHOLE, A FAMILY HAPPIER BY HIS PRESENCE; to renounce when that shall be necessary and not to be embittered; to keep a few friends, but those without capitulation; above all, on the same calm condition to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy."

"The world is so full of a number of things I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

"If I have moved among my race And shown no glorious morning face, If beams from happy human eyes Have missed me not, if morning skies, Books and my food and winter rain Knocked on my sullen heart in vain, Lord, Thy most potent pleasure take And stah my spirit broad awake."

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Sharp Knife and Understanding of Joints Great Helps in Carving.

By Alice B. Whitaker.

At Thanksgiving as much of the dinner as possible should be placed on the table at once even if on other days the various courses are sharply defined. This way makes it seem more like the bountiful feast for which the forefathers gave thanks and the forefathers told for days in happy anticipation of how the family would enjoy the good things. Today the market, the tin can and the delicatessen shop help out thousands of housewives and the feast is in no way representative of the family as it once did. Yet the ability to buy and pay for the dinner is something for which to be thankful.

It is not a pleasing matter to disjoin a great turkey in the presence of a row of interested spectators down each side of the table and many a host shrinks from the task even while he puts on a brave manner. The hostesses can help much by providing a sharp knife and if the guests will kindly engage in general conversation all may go well. If it does not and a wing flies off at one angle and a bit of stuffing mars the shining damask make a good joke of what cannot be ignored. The host can safely assume that no one could do better than he, so limited is the general knowledge of the art of carving gracefully.

The first essential to good carving is to understand the anatomy of the bird and where the joints are located with no false motions it will fall apart without accident. It is the best way to begin by cutting off the legs with the wings and last slicing from the breast instead of the reverse order that is so often taken. If the turkey is large or the number of guests is very small one side of the bird may be carved then turn it over on its side on the platter and it will look good for the second serving. But on this day economy is not uppermost in the mind and the whole turkey is usually dismembered giving each guest a choice portion.

The carver is advised to take the fork in the left hand and plunge it into the breast with the tines each side of the bone. This will give him a firm hold on the turkey and keep it from slipping from the platter. Press the knife blade close to the body back of the leg and cut inward; the stroke should take off the leg and the second cut. Now put the fork in the leg and if the turkey is large, two good sized slices may be taken off then divide the two joints of the leg. Cut a wing off with two strokes, the first will sever the joint and the second will separate the wing from the body. Divide each wing at its joint. Now cut a circular slice from the place where the wing came off as this is a much prized portion.

Next cut large but very thin slices from the breast by again placing the fork over the breast bone. Let these slices fall one on another without breaking.

The tidbits of the whole turkey lie at the lower part of the back bone on either side. There are two curved pieces of dark meat and are sometimes called the oysters.

It may be added that the turkey platter should be very large, otherwise set a smaller one beside it on which to do the minor carving. This is convenient and saves the tablecloth. A large tray cloth sometimes called a carver's cloth is not an unhelpful precaution at the carver's end of the table and when removed leaves the cloth beneath without disfiguring mark.

Plus belong to Thanksgiving much more than puddings and they should be brought to the table whole to be divided and served by the hostess. The main point is to cut entirely through the undercarving allowing each to come out of the plate unbroken. Nothing is better than the old-fashioned silver pie knife for serving pie and as there are usually at least two kinds at this time. Make the pieces not larger than one-sixth of the whole.

WAYS OF SERVING POTATOES.

There are several hundred ways of serving the pomme de terre so that we need not fear monotony in serving this common vegetable.

Have ready a quart of cold, cooked potatoes chopped to the size of small beans, a half a cup of tomato sifted and reduced to a thick pulp, one large green pepper freed from seeds and minced fine, one small onion minced, three tablespoonfuls of fat in which the onion and pepper is cooked until soft; then add the potato and tomato with salt and pepper to taste. Cook until dry and serve with fish or cold meat.

Cashed Brown Potatoes.—Chop cold cooked potatoes rather fine, dust with salt and pepper. For each pint of potatoes have two tablespoonfuls of butter melted in a hot frying pan; spread the potatoes evenly and shake them over the fire until brown. Add a half cup of thin cream and let stand without stirring until the cream is absorbed. Roll like omelet and serve on a hot platter, garnish with sprigs of parsley. A soup that is very delicious and nourishing is made from potatoes.

Cream of Potato Soup.—Pare and cook until tender four medium-sized potatoes, mash and add to the following ingredients: To a quart of milk add a slice of onion, a stalk of celery and a sprig of parsley, or only the onion may be used as a flavor. When scalding hot remove the onion and add two tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour that have been cooked together; strain and add the potatoes. Serve very hot. For extra occasions a beaten egg added just before serving adds much to the quality of the soup.

Potatoes Baked With Cheese.—Put a layer of cold cooked potatoes in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with a generous layer of grated cheese; add more potatoes and a cupful of white sauce made with two tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour cooked until smooth, then add a cup of milk. Cook in a hot oven until the cheese is melted.

Thought for Today

By MRS. ROBERT N. LAFOLLETTE.

"THE HYGIENIC WINDOW"

D. R. WINTHROP TALBOT, discussing good air as the first condition of good workmanship, says it seems strange that men accustomed to study conditions affecting profit and loss, should be thoughtless and ignorant concerning the nature of the air by which their thoughts and actions are directly influenced. They complain of poor health, of taking cold, of headache, of impaired power of concentration, when nothing is the matter with them except breathing over and over again the incense emanating from their own bodies and their cigars.

All that he says as to the remedy is directly applicable to the home and the schoolroom, and should be the first thought of every housekeeper and of every teacher in the season when the fires are lighted, and the windows closed. In a room which is occupied one window should be opened at the bottom so that a current of air can enter at the level of the face, and make an exit at an opposite window, lowered from the top. The outlet should be made on the side away from the wind. A piece of plate glass or board across the lower opening to deflect the air upward, and wire mesh or piece of cloth at the top opening, to allow the air to filter out, without rapid loss of heat, are helpful but not necessary adjuncts.

Windows should be screened full length in summer so as to admit of the free use of the upper as well as the lower sash, which should always be in order so as to pull up and down easily.

Window shades as commonly arranged, are an abomination. Instead of one at the top, there should be two hung in the center of the window, one rolling up toward the top, the other down toward the bottom. This permits the lowering of the window from top or bottom without the distracting flapping so destructive of the curtain and so annoying to the nerves. It also permits of the right inlet of light from the upper part of the window.

FUR AND FABRIC COMBINATIONS.

New York City.—The use of silk, satin, velvet, and brocade in combination with fur, still continues to be extremely modish—so if you have a set that is worn in places—or any fur bands of trimmings from former winter garments—there is no reason why you should not have a fashionable set at little cost.

I saw an elderly lady on Fifth Avenue yesterday with a set in black marten and heavy ermine silk, that offered some excellent suggestions. At each end double bands of marten at the neck and about the middle, with an oddly folded pulling of silk ermine between. It was of a saddle shape quite a bit wider at the lower than the upper side.

The collar was a deep shawl, of pale blue effect, with three single bands of marten, ending in marten tails. Between the bands were shaped sections of the pulled silk, tapering to a point as they neared the lower ends—thus bringing the fur bands increasingly closer, until at last they joined. The set was warm, comfortable, and luxurious looking and though evidently the work of some high priced furrier, could easily be duplicated at less expense.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE LAND OWNER BOTH JUDGE AND JURY.

By A. W. MACY.

Before the time of Edward I. the private land owner in England had things pretty much his own way. Not the least of his powers was that of complete jurisdiction over his own domain. He held his own court, being both judge and jury, and all within his borders were subject to his rule. The gallows for hanging men and the pit for drowning women were prominent features of every estate. In those days the right of trying criminals was one of the perquisites attached to the ownership of Daynard's castle. In London, it was owned by Sir Robert Fitzwalter, and many years after his death this right of jurisdiction was claimed by his descendants. One of his privileges which they claimed was that of drowning in the Thames all traitors caught within his territory. Little by little this power of jurisdiction was wrested from the private land owners, but it was not entirely abolished till 1745.

FRUIT SUGAR HELPS IN HEART DISEASE.

An English physician, Dr. Goulston, has discovered that fruit sugar is of great value in the treatment of heart disease. Glycogen, or muscle sugar, is consumed in all muscular exercise. Starch must be converted into this form of sugar in the system before it can be utilized, and furnishing a form of sugar ready for assimilation readily supplies the heart and other muscles, while relieving the digestive system of the strain of digesting heavier foods. Milk sugar is a large component of the infant's food. This discovery supports the contention frequently stated in these hints that 80 per cent. of an ideal diet should be fruit sugar or a form of starch or sugar easily converted into muscle sugar, and explains the reason of the remarkable improvement made by a young athlete who was advised to adopt an exclusive diet of bananas before and during a severe test of physical endurance. The starch of rice is more easily converted into muscle sugar than that of other cereals or of potatoes, but fresh figs, dates, raisins and bananas are still better. But these should not be mixed with heavy foods and especially not with flesh meat.

What is This—

ANSWER

One—the flat, sad, sickly looking one—was baked with poor baking powder; possibly the high-priced kind—possibly the cheap, big can kind. It denotes a lack of leavening gas, or an uneven distribution of same—or both. The other—the large, light, fluffy one—was prepared with Calumet Baking Powder, and denotes the never-failing, delicious baking that always results from its use.

Calumet does not cost as much as the high price baking powder, but it is very much superior in every way—it is purer—more reliable—more healthful. Here are the reasons:

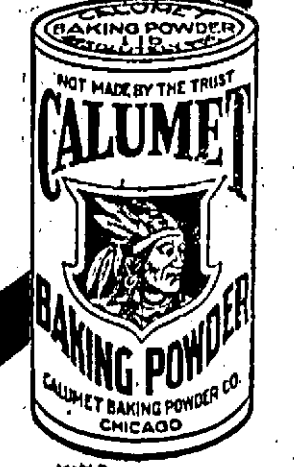

All baking powders undergo a chemical change in the process of baking. You do not take it into the stomach in the same form as it is in the can. For example: When you use Cream of Tartar Baking Powder you get Rochelle Salts in your food, because the Cream of Tartar during this reaction turns into Rochelle Salts. This, as you know, is a drug, and should be taken only under doctor's orders.

Calumet is so carefully and scientifically prepared that the neutralization of the ingredients is absolutely perfect.

That it is absolutely pure and of highest quality is proven by the fact that
